THE FLOOD.

The rhythmic ring of a horse's feet Echoes along the city street, And the idle crowd swarms out to see Whom can the reckless rider be.

With bloodless face and blazing eyes He dashes on, and wildly cries Ply, for the river's wrath is near! Fly. for the Flood-the Flood is here!

He passes, and they stand amazed; Then jest, and deem the rider crazed-Some mischief-breeding addlepate-Then turn and see, and fly-too late!

> With a moan and a groan, With a shrick and a roar, Down on the town The waters pour-A shivering crash, And it is no more !

The torrent sweeps on its changeless path, Grinding the puny walls like chaff, In its awful play. Like straws before the fresh'ning breeze, Like sands beneath the beating seas,

A DAM OF SHALE AND CLAY.

That's What a Mine-Owner Says there Was at Conemangh.

William Hanry Smith, of the Associated Press, sends out from Johnstown a despatch disputing the statement by the Secretary of the South Fork Fishing Club that no complaints had ever been made about the safety of the Conemaugh dam by any Johnstown "There is not a shadow of doubt but that eltizens of Cambria County frequently complained, and that at the time the dam was constructed a very vigorous effort was made to put a stop to the work. "It is true that the leader in this movement was not a citizen of Johnstown, but he was and is a large mine owner in Cambria from the wreckage and taken to the Morgue County. His mine adjoins the reservoir property. He related to me on Saturday the tory of his labors in an effort to protect the lives and property of the people of that valley. What Visitors to the Broken Dam Say o Its Construction.

SPECIAL TO THE EVERING WORLD.] JOHNSTOWN, Pa. . June 5.—The broken dam, where the terrible Conemangh disaster had its beginning, is receiving attention now that the first thrills of horror over the catastrophe itself have in some measure begun to subside. Numbers of correspondents and others have raited the dam, and no one who has seen it calirms the stories of its elaborate structure and fine masonry which have been told in

Years ago, when the recervoir back of the dam was used as a feeder to the Pennsylvania Canal, the dam was in better shape, and it is could readily be opened so as to relieve the reservoir if the pressure of water became too

These sluices had been kept closed by the South Fork Fishing Club since they came into possession of the place, in order that the game fish in the lake might not escape to the river below.

This method of preserving the fishing grounds is suggestive of the days of steamboat racing on the Mississippi, when small darkies were seated on the safety valves in order that no steam might be wasted.

Experts have declared that had these extra sluices been kept in order and operated there is no room to doubt that the terrible calamity in the Conemaugh Valley could have been

Not only do those who have visited the dam declare that its material was insufficient, but they also assert that it was not lined out on an approved basis of engineering.

The spot was formerly a bank which rose about thirty feet above the stream.

It is believed that buried underneath the great heaps of sand and mud will be found the bodies of perhaps seventy-five or a hundred people who were swept to death while heroically striving to rescue shricking passengers on roofs and other floating material, as they were driven past on the angry flood.

The backing by the water away from the huge pile behind the stone bridge carried away the embankment and swallowed up the men and boys and even women who stood

KATRINA AGAIN. THE DERBY WINNER.

Minutes 43 Seconds.

[SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.] SANDY HOOK, N. J., June 5,-This is a perfect day for a yacht race. Wind, weather and tide are in accord and the probabilities are that the second of the series of match races between the Katrina and Shamrock will be the closest and most interesting of all. At sunrise this morning an EVENING WORLD reporter climbed into the marine observatory at the point of Eandy Hook. A light breeze was blowing out of the west just hard enough to make the bay and ocean appear like a said that there were extra sluiceways which green field dotted with sparkling diamonds, As the day wore on the breeze increased in force, until at 8 o'clock it was blowing at the rate of twenty-five miles an hour. Then it decreased to twenty-two. The course as laid out to-day was a splendid test for the yachts. The start was from Buov No. 10, near the Southwest Spit. As the wind was due west, the racers went

As the wind was due west, the racers went dead before the wind under a cloud of canvas to the point of the Hook and then for Sandy Hook Lightship.

From there it was a dead beat to windward to the Shrewsbury rocks.

Then it was with wind abeam, up the Jersey shore, and another little beat to the finish, making a 39-mile course.

The yachts arrived at the starting point at 10.30 o'clock. They immediately cast off from the tug and set their mainsails.

Then they stood up a bit to windward and the Electra, coming up fifteen minutes later, took a position near the starting point. Then they manceuved for positions.

There was a long delay in getting them off. They were probably searching for buoy No. 10, but that be toon had been removed long ago.

The preparatory gun was fired at 11.21.30. Both yachts stood in towards Staten Island and lowered their spinnaker booms to starboard. Then they came about and came down for the line.

The Shamrock crossed first at 11.34.20; the Katrina followed at 11.36.28.

When they reached the line they broke out

When they reached the line they broke out their spinuakers to seaboard in one beautiful cloud of snow-white canvas.

Every stitch drew and sails bellied out under the impelling force of the fresh breeze. They passed Buoy No. 5, off the pitch of the Hook, in the following time; Shamrock. 11.48.50; Katrina, 11.50.50.

Going past the buoy in the Southwest Channel this was the time; Shamrock, 12.01.57; Katrina, 12.03.12.

This was a gain of forty-five seconds to the Katrina from the start.

Both vachts on nearing the turning point, Sandy Hook Lightship, took in their spinnakers.

Sandy Hook lightship, took in their spin-nakers.

They rounded the lightship in this order:
Shamrock, 12.32.10; Katrina, 12.33.40.

Then sheets were trimmed flat, and away they went on the wind.

The Katrina soon demonstrated her superiority, for she both outpointed and out-footed the white sloop.

At 1.25 the Katrina passed the Shamrock to windward and walked away from her like a flash.

The Shamrock took in her topsail shortly after rounding the lightship, but set it out again a few minutes later. She could not carry it, and was forced then to take it in

It was a long reach out to the lightship again with the wind slightly abeam.

In this run the Shamrock gained a few

Simons Harrison's bay colt Gay Hampton (Robinson), the Duke of Portland's bay colt Turcophone (Martin) and Mr. J. Jennings, jr. schestnut colt Royal Star (J. Woodburn).

The last betting was as follows: 5 to 4 on Donovan, 35 to 1 against Miguel, 12 to 1 against El Dorado, 17 to 1 against Poet Laureste, 17 to 1 against Pione r. 20 to 1 against Folengo, 33 to 1 against Pione r. 20 to 1 against Folengo, 33 to 1 against Enthusiast, 50 to 1 against Oulliver, 65 to 1 against Gay Hampton, 66 to 1 against Turcophone, and 200 to 1 arainst Royal Star.

At the second attempt the borses were despatched, Morglay making the running, followed by Folengo and Enthusiast, These three were clear of the rest of the field, which was headed by Gay Hampton and Donovan, with Clover next, El Dorado and Poet Laureste were last.

These positions were unchanged until Tattenham Corner was reached, where Turcophone took the lead with Donovan second. Soon Donovan was bard in the front and cantered home, finishing a length and a half ahead of of Miguel, who was hard rinden. El Dorado was a bad third. Pioneer finished fourth. The time—2,44 2-5.

The weather during the day was perfect.
